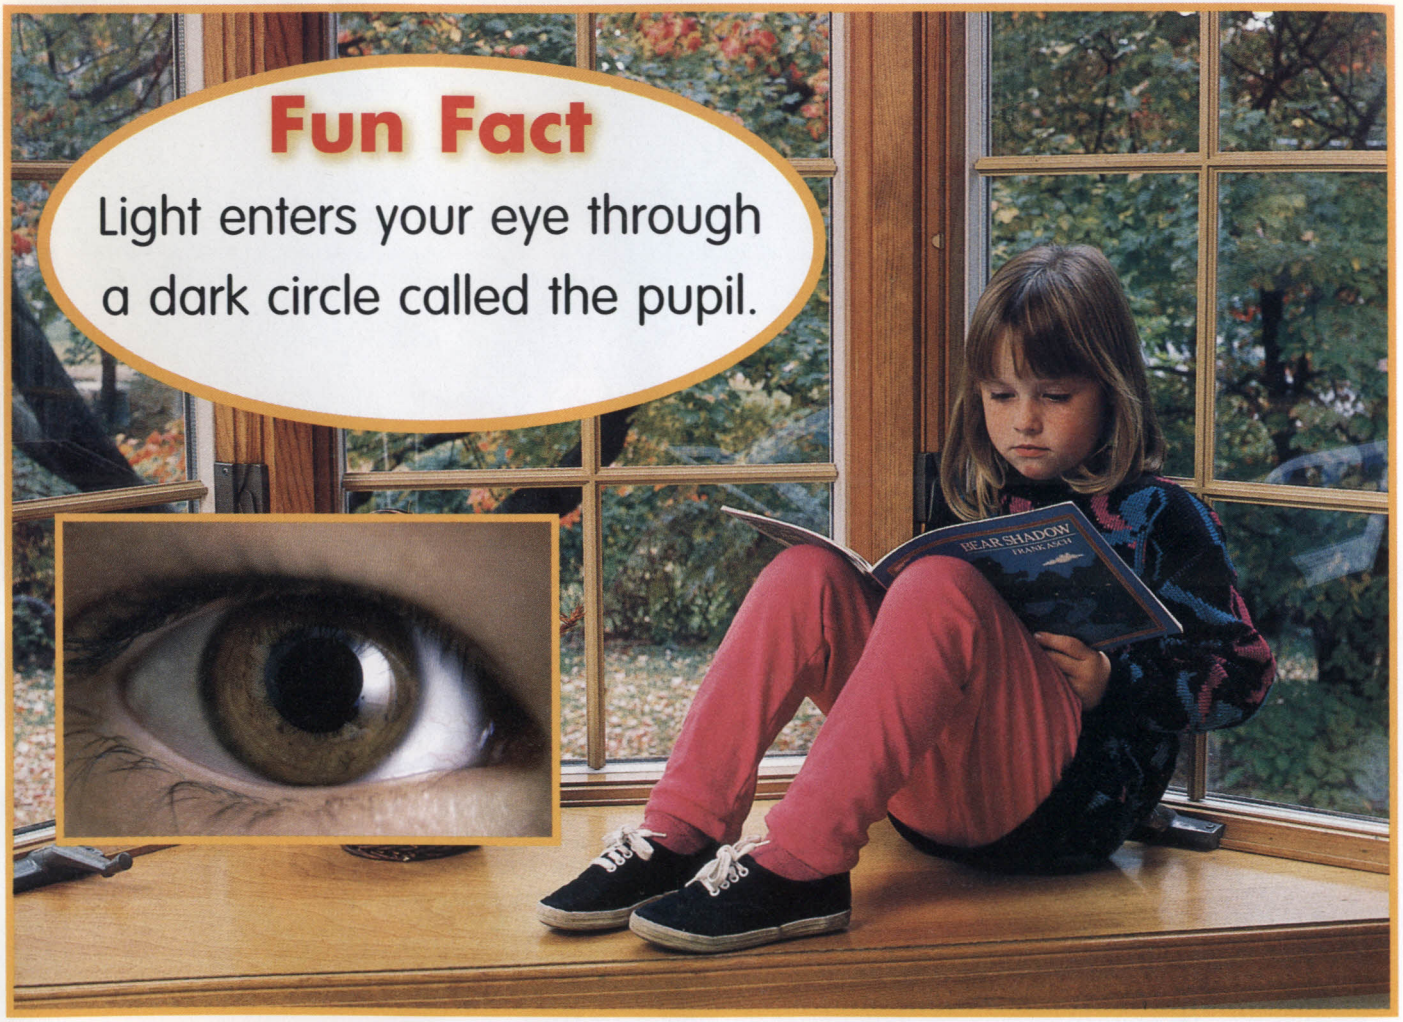
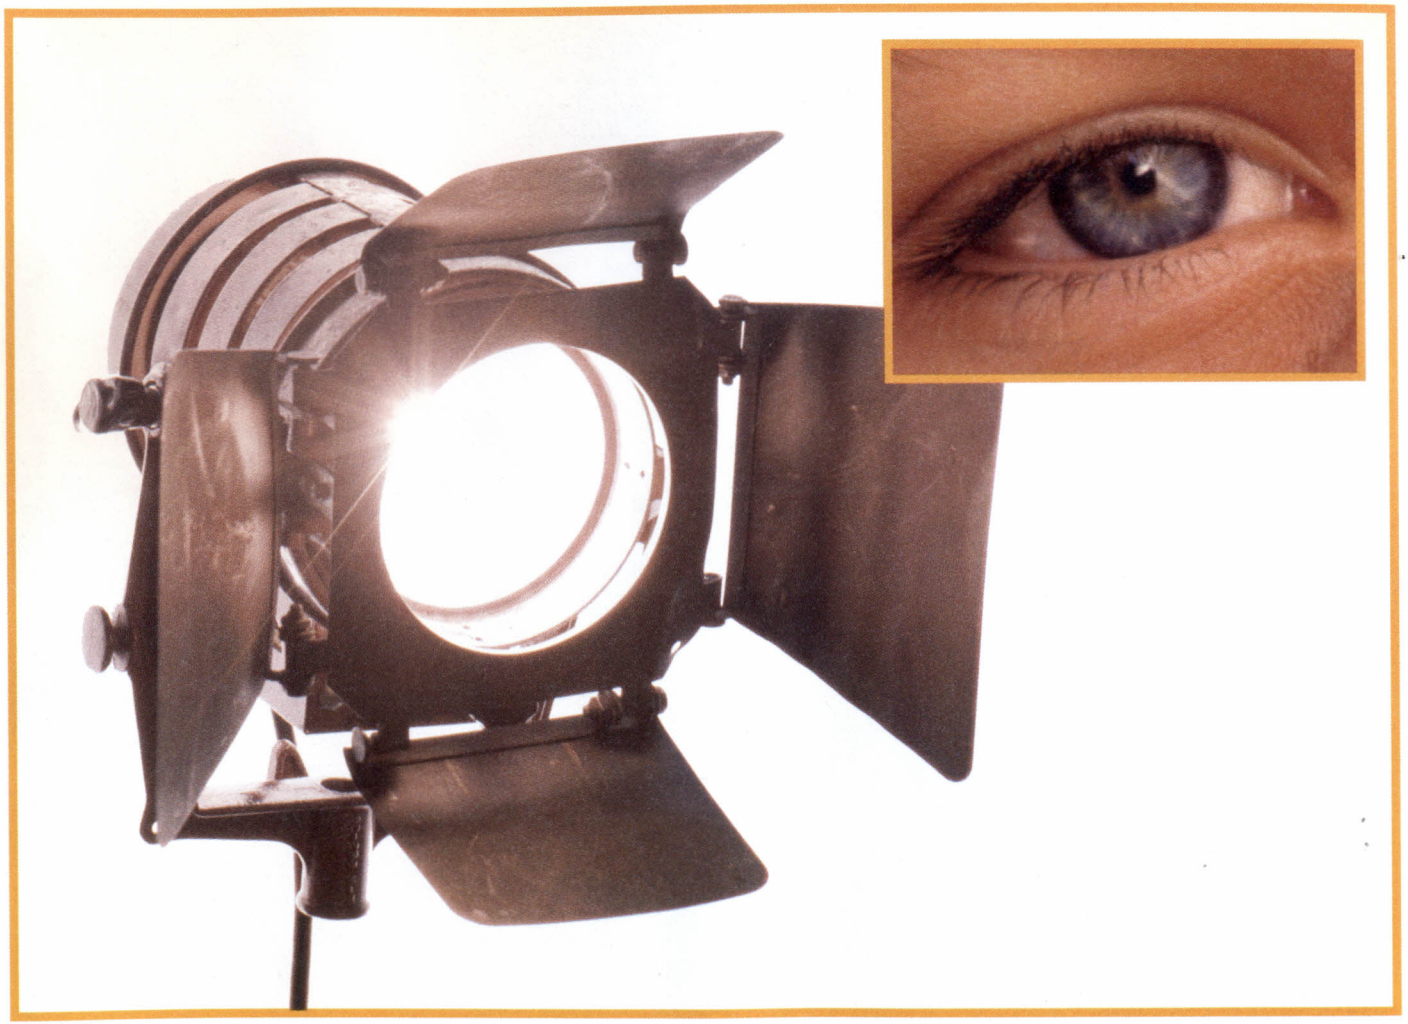
You see with your eyes.



You need light to see.

You cannot see in the dark.



You can see bright light.

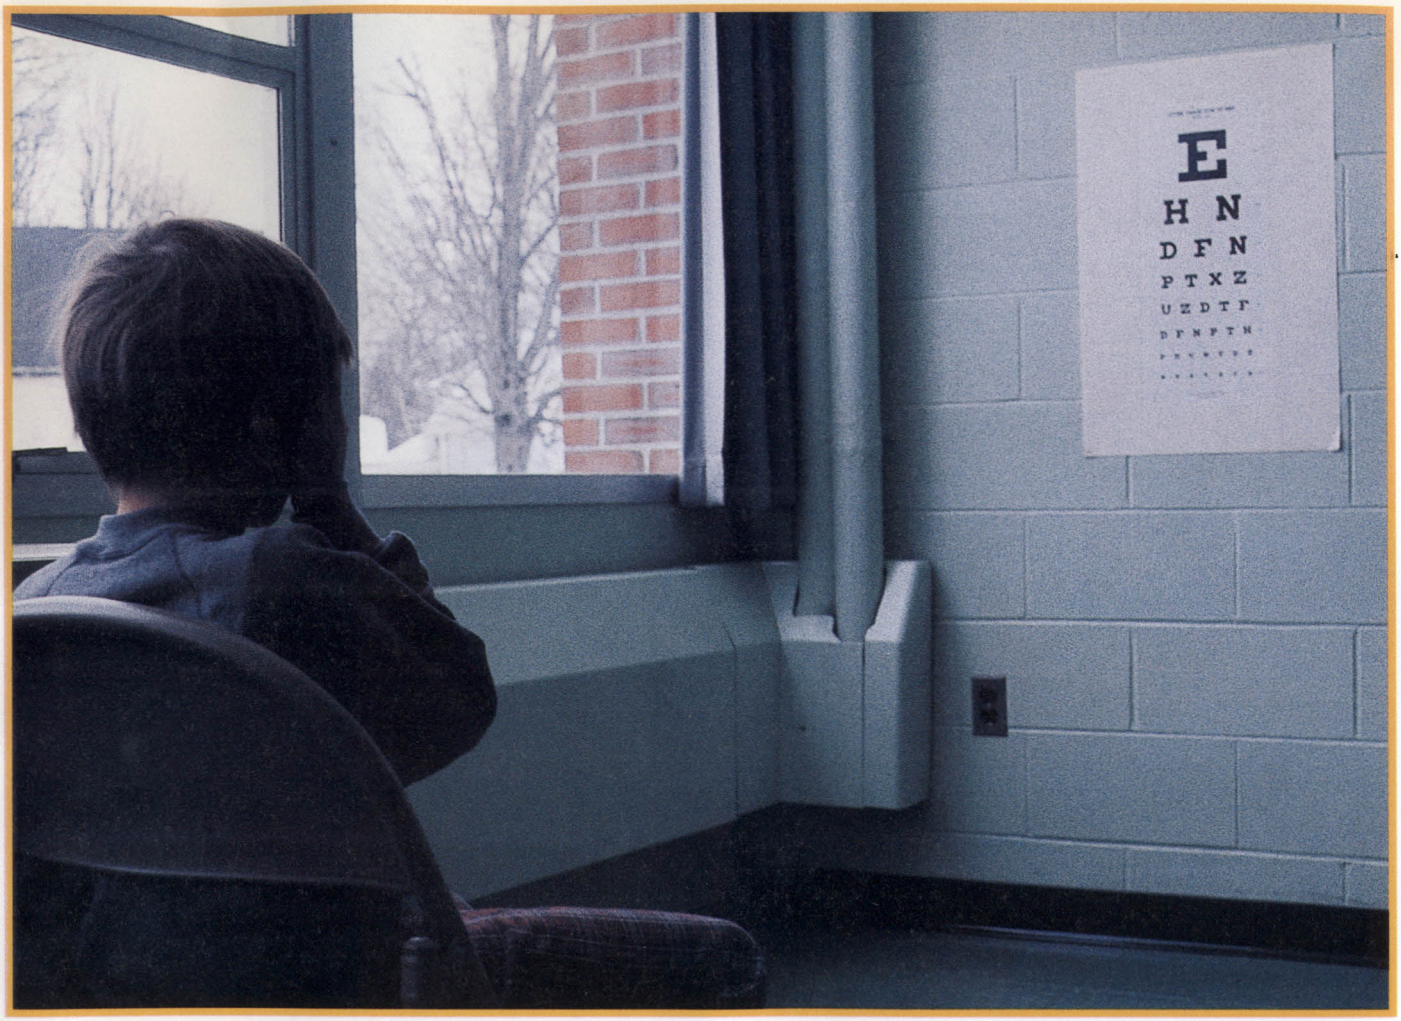
You can see dim light.

You can see big things.

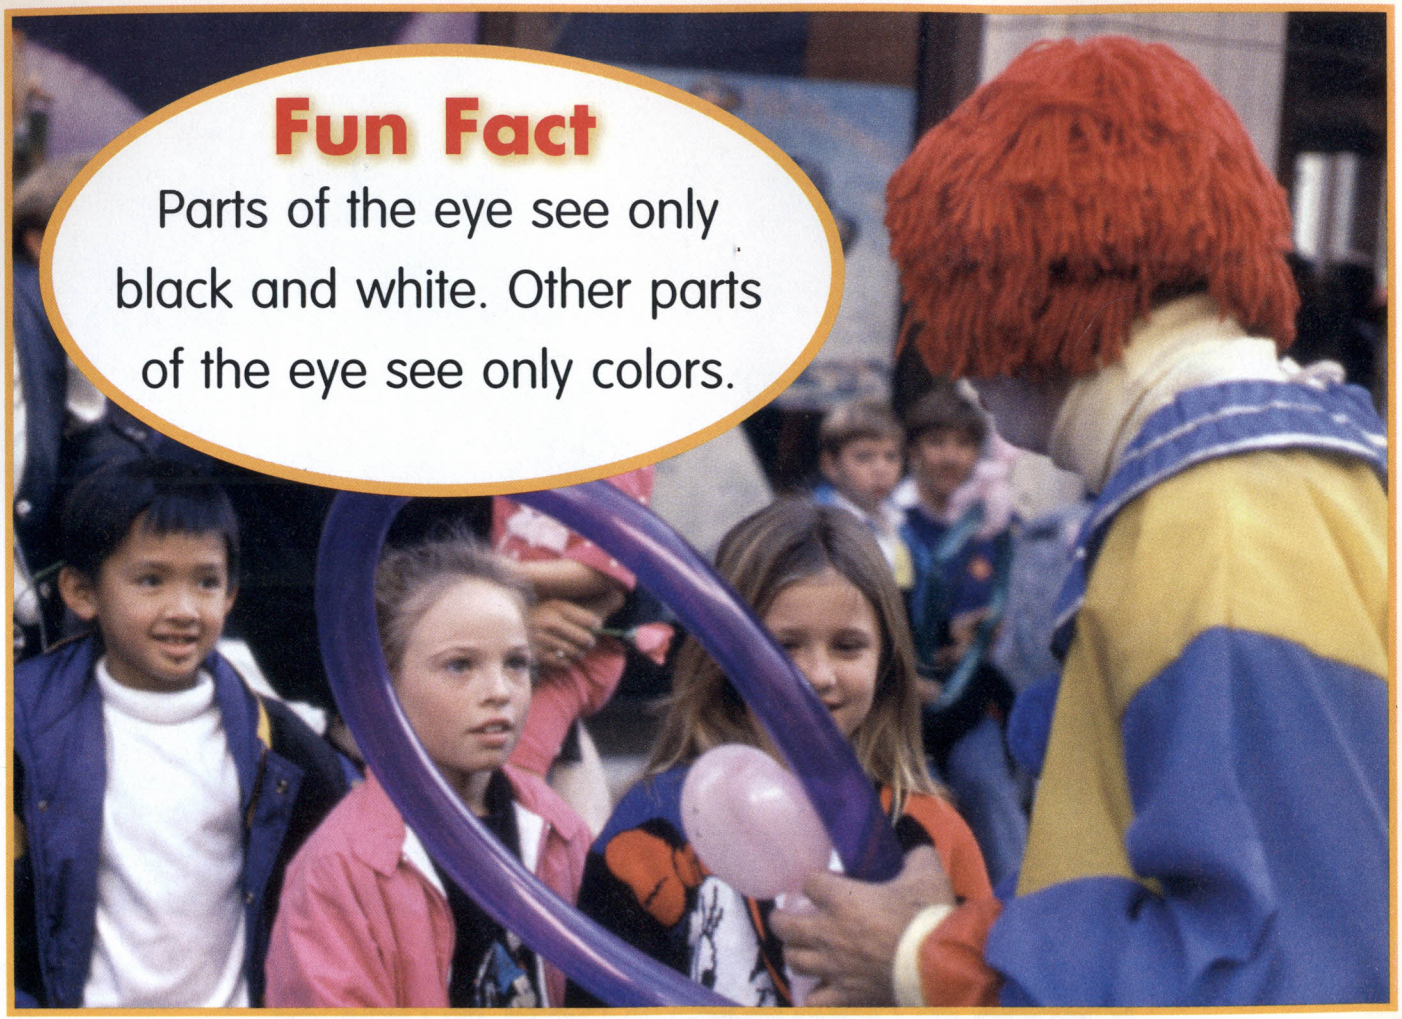
You can see small things.

You can see things that are near.

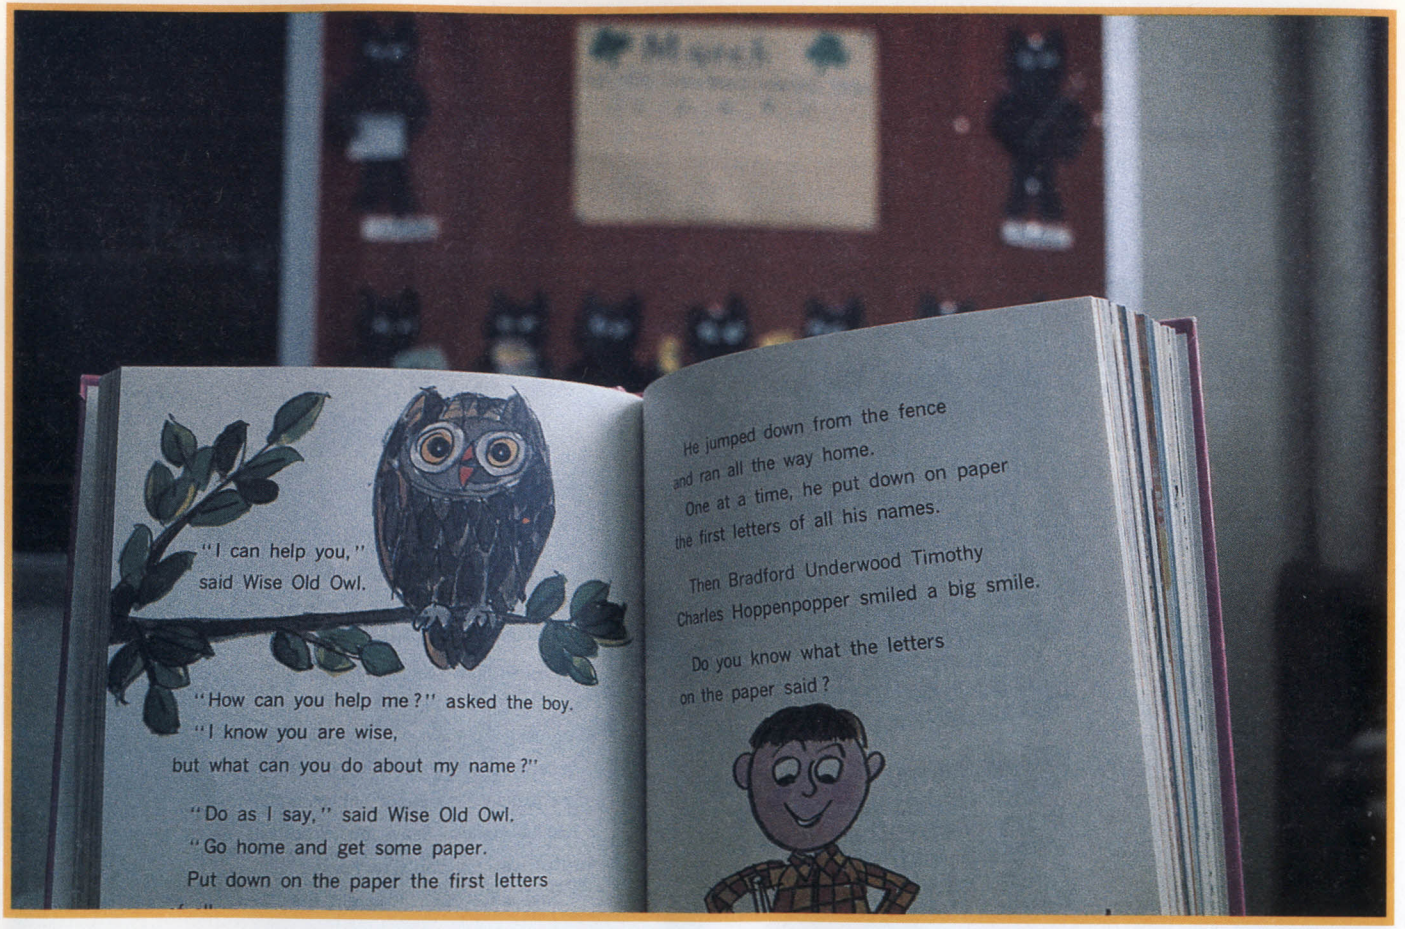
You can see things that are far.



You can see black and white.



You can see different colors.



"I can help you,"
said Wise Old Owl.
"How can you help me?" asked the boy.
"I know you are wise,
but what can you do about my name?"
"Do as I say," said Wise Old Owl.
"Go home and get some paper.
Put down on the paper the first letters
He jumped down from the fence
and ran all the way home.
One at a time, he put down on paper
the first letters of all his names.
Then Bradford Underwood Timothy
Charles Hoppenpopper smiled a big smile.
Do you know what the letters on the paper said?

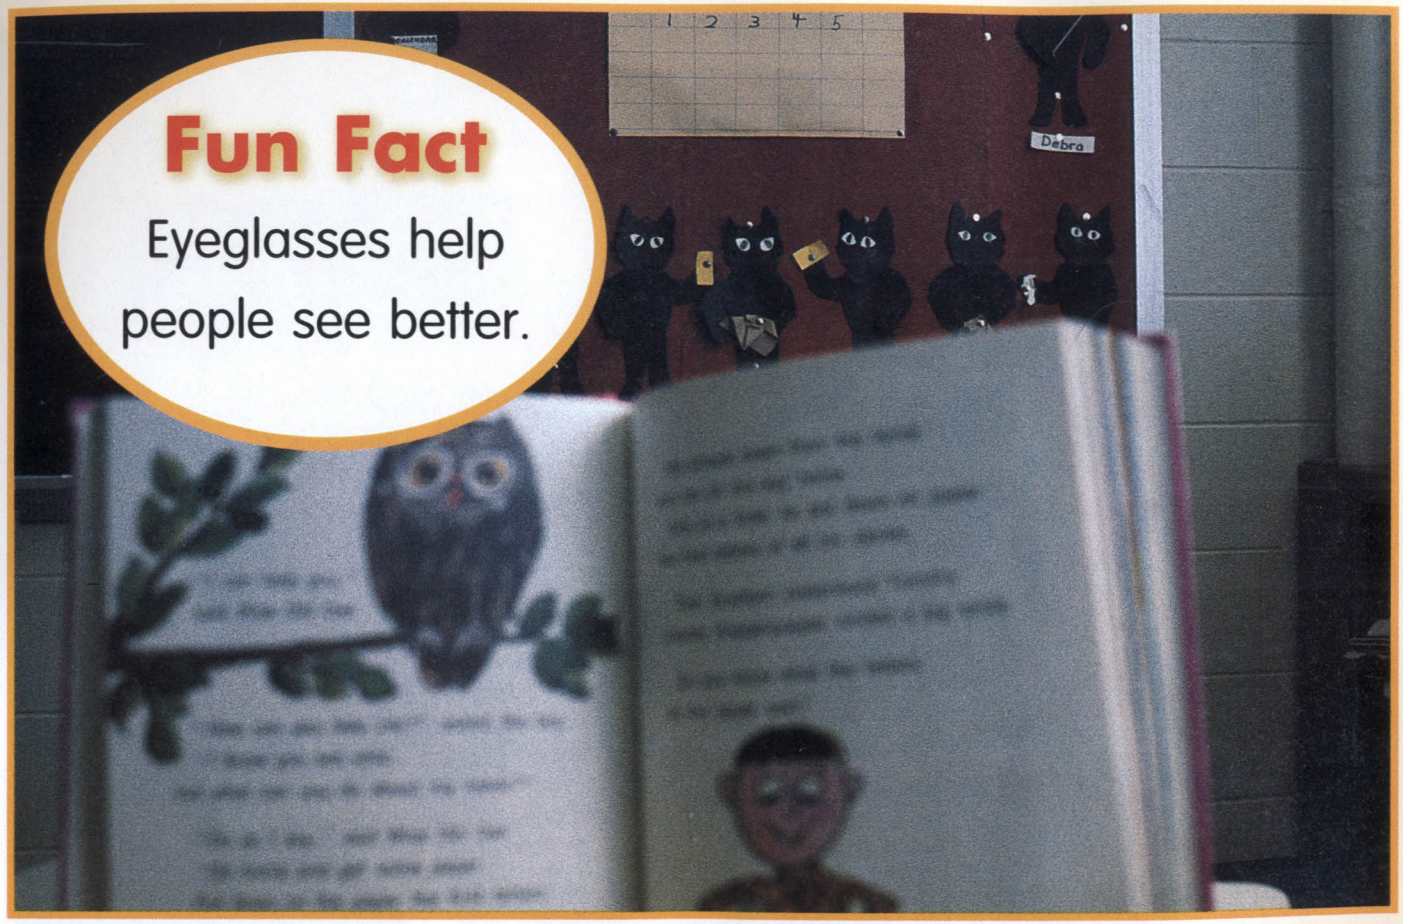
Some people see the world like this.



Some people see the world like this.

Take care of your eyes!
